

submissions

From: Hugh Dickson [REDACTED]
Sent: Tuesday, 6 November 2012 1:57 PM
To: submissions
Cc: agriculture@ministerial.qld.gov.au; health@ministerial.qld.gov.au;
catherine.king.mp@aph.gov.au; nicola.roxon.mp@aph.gov.au;
south.brisbane@parliament.qld.gov.au
Subject: Application A1069 for the Irradiation of Tomatoes and Capsicums

To whom it may concern,

Currently there is a proposal to irradiate tomatoes and capsicums. I am strongly against this proposal on the grounds that the relevant human safety issues have not been addressed. There is no evidence to say that food irradiation is safe for humans. On the contrary, food irradiation has been shown to cause serious health issues to animals. This indicates that food irradiation is something to be very wary of, and not something to blithely dismiss as "safe" when we really don't know the health implications.

REJECT A1069!

Thank you,

Hugh Dickson
[REDACTED]